Policies and Actions in Gender Equality Comparing universities' experiences

Webinar

December 17th, 2021 h. 9-12

The webinar aims at analysing the process of gender equality in the various declinations within national and European academic contexts in light of the CIVIS partner universities' experiences.

As a matter of fact, the universities play a strategical role with their research and teaching activities, as a cultural mission for society. It's what during the 71st United Nations General Assembly held in 2016, the UN Women unveiled with the first-ever

HeForShe Impact 10x10x10 University Parity Report.

It was the starting point for concrete academic commitments based on the universities' progress toward achieving inner gender parity, but also in the economic, political and social institutions that universities inspire with their knowledge. After some years, universities have strengthened their role, becoming more critical about their gender gaps and facing new social challenges. Much about these (last) issues will be debated as the focus of the meeting comparing research, teaching and planning experiences among the CIVIS partners, whose main goals as a scientific consortium insist on them (e.g., sustainable development and gender implications, social impact assessment and indicators of the University inclusion policies, etc.).
